Major changes are going on in the valuation of investments. Although the  $\zeta$ classic $\zeta$  shareholder value concept is still a valuable source for identification of value drivers of strategic management, it needs to be extended in terms of its ability to evaluate long-term investment choices. Far too long capital budgeting has only been considered under aspects of its contribution to an overall added economic value rather than focusing on a firm's resources. Recent research emphasized the strategic value of resources leading to formulate the approach of a  $\zeta$ resource-based view $\zeta$  of a firm's activities. Usually management tries to capture future development with  $\zeta$ static $\zeta$  methods of capital budgeting, i.e. future cash-flows are discounted with a fixed risk-adjusted discount rate. However, the finding of present values and capitalized values could produce pitfalls in investment...
